WIRTH'S CABINET, BOLTING COALITION

Dissatisfaction With Reparations Policy at Root of German Shake-Up.

NON-PARTY IDEA LOOMS IN NEW UNDERTAKING

President Faces Confusion in Attempting Appointment of New Ministers.

By the Associated Press BERLIN, November 15 .- The German cabinet, headed by Chancellor Wirth, has fallen. The ministerial resignations, filed last night, were precipitated by the decision of the united socialists not to participate in a coalition ministry which included member of the German people's party. But the friends of Chancellor Wirth were not oblivious of the feeling that he had outlived his usefulness and now has become a victim of a policy of indecision and inactivity which found its culmination in the government's failure to make a practical arrangement with the allied reparations commission during the course of its recent visit to Berlin.

Ever since the assassination of Foreign Minister Rathenau the chancellor has been described as a man who apparently possessed no inspiration, no initiative. This attitude gave added weight to the assertion that the late foreign minister was Wirth's inspiration and the force which urged him on.
With the passing of Dr. Rathenau, the chancellor visibly lost influence with his cabinet colleagues. As a rewith his cannet colleagues. As a sult the support given his "policy of fulfillment" diminished day by day. He admitted the collapse of this policy last summer, when he announced that the government's slogan had become: "Bread first, then reparations."

Undermining Causes.

Foreign criticism of the alleged weakness of the cabinet, emanating from London, as well as Berlin, during the last few days, contributed to undermining the chancellor's position, even in the ranks of the coalition party. His belated espousal of the people's party as a necessary adjunct prise to the public that Prime Ministo the government definitely alienated the support he had been receiving from the socialists.

From the socialists.

Ever-since the assassination of Dr. Rathenau, the chancelor has been obsessed with fear for his personal safety. During the last few months a heavy guard of plainclothes men has constantly surounded him.

Chancellor Wirth's efforts to extend the government coalition to include the German people's party really foundered on the unrelenting antagonism of the united socialists to any participation in a cabinet in

Saw Hope in Note.

Chancellor Wirth had hoped that his new reparations note would constitute the rallying point for an enlargement in the government coalition, especially as it had the approval of the clericals, democrats and the people's parties. Even the efforts party friends to continue in the government have been unavailing.

The procedure of the radicals last night in bringing to a vote their stand on the coalition ministry, which would include representatives of the German people's party, was viewed wholly as a tactical maneuver calculated labor party. to impress the radical voters, who have been told by their leaders and have been told by their leaders and their press for months past that official alliance with the industrialists party was unthinkable.

Throughout Monday and Tuesday parties comprising the radical wing stiffened their opposition to the proposed extension of the government, and the deciding vote was pushed through after Chancellor Wirth had requested the party leaders to hasten their decision. It was his contention that the situation demanded immediate clarity. As soon as the vote had that the situation demanded immediate clarity. As soon as the vote had been taken by the united socialists the chancellor notified the president of the cabinet's decision to resign.

Today the president will undertake the first steps toward the appointment of a new cabinet. During the night the situation was one of utter confusion. A number of solutions of the crisis already have been suggested. One is for a cabinet of "business men without party affiliations," while another probability concerns itself with a ministry composed only of the bourgeoisie party. It is uncertain whether Wirth again will be commissioned to constitute a new ministry.

Editors Favor Change.

Wirth's further availability as chancellor is strongly doubted by a among the press of the capital, mainlarge section of the press, as well as tain that the great feature of the by many rechstag leaders. They be- electoral campaign has been the lieve that the circumstances under which the crisis was precipitated, together with the present state of the reparations negotiations, demand as the head of the cabinet a man unfettered by the failure of the government's previous policies.

In all, President Ebert is confronted with one of the most critical problems of his administration, especially in view of his party affiliations.

Among the solutions suggested today the proposition for a cabinet of non-partisan experts seemed most favored, although the shortage of available candidates who would eventually command the confidence of the reichstag was admitted on all available candidates who would eventually command the confidence of the reichstag was admitted on all sides. It is also argued that a purely bourgeois cabinet would be short lived, in view of socialist opposition in the reichstag, which would be [Continued on Page 2, Column 2.]

any participation in a cabinet in which the Stinnes-Stresemann group also would be represented.

The vote which finally precipitated the crisis came last night, the socialists in the reichstag deciding by a large majority against any extension of the coalition to include the party of the industrialists.

Throughout the day there was hope that a truce might be effected, especially in view of the government's new reparations proposals, which were drafted by the cabinet, which included four socialists. Besides, the proposal approved several of the demands put forth by the socialists in the London insurance market yesterday, had to pay a rate which indicated that a majority of conservatives and independent unionists over all other parties was regarded as almost certain, but the odds were of to 3 against the expectation that to conservatives would get a majority of eighty or more.

The morning papers today earnestly appeal to the electors to exercise their franchises, and to take nothing for granted. The anti-labor newspapers express considerable fear of apathy among the electorate. They are particularly concerned lest the middle class of home-keeping women, whose first interests are their families, neglect the opportunity to cast their vote against labor.

Slogan Against Labor.

At the last parliamentary elections it was estimated that only about 60 per cent of the electors went to the polls. Opponents of labor fear that unless more energy is displayed today, laborites will benefit, since their organization is believed to be of President Ebert to persuade his very complete. From the unionist newspapers goes up the earnest cry: "Whatever you do, don't vote labor." Lloyd George, too, is strong in his opposition to the laborite program. In an overnight message to the electors he urged them to support "candidates who are opposing socialism didates who are opposing socialism as laid down in the manifesto of the

The Daily Chronicle, an ardent supporter of Lloyd George, stresses the same thought in its editorials, urging its readers not to vote for labor unless such a ballot afford the only chance of defeating the die-hards.
